THE OLYMPIC MARATHON

For the First Time the Race Was Won by an American.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30.—The Olympic Marathon race, the third foot race of the kind ever held and the first ever held on American soil, participated in by thirty-one men, classed among the best runners of the world, was won today by Thomas J. Hicks of Cambridge, Mass., who is the first American to win this event celebrated in the revival of Olympic games. Albert J. Corey of Chicago, native born French, crossed the goal line second and A. L. Newton of New York City, crossed third. The distance of the race was forty kilometers, equal to 24 miles and 1,500 yards. This distance was run by Hicks in the officially announced time of three hours, twenty-eight minutes and fifty-three seconds; Corey, three hours, thirty-four minutes and sixteen seconds; Newton, three hours, forty-seven minutes and thirty-three seconds.

The first Olympic Marathon race was held at Athens, Greece, in 1896, and was won by Loues, a Greek, in two hours and fifty-five minutes; the second Olympic Marathon race was held in Paris in 1900 and won by Teuto, of France, in two hours and fifty-nine minutes. The winner of today's race received the cup presented by President Francis of the exposition and the Olympic championship gold medal, the second a silver medal and the third a medal of bronze.

A PARSI-MONIOUS ASTOR.

It is said in London that although William Waldorf Astor occasionally indulges in vast expenditures such as the purchase of Cliveden or a splendid steam yacht he has taken to parsimonious ways in small matters. They declare that on a recent occasion he even objected to paying 6 cents each for cabbages, denouncing it as "a monstrous imposition" on the part of his grocer. In his offices on the Thames embankment stands a steel desk, one of the curiosities of which is the petty cash drawer, always filled with sovereigns. Mr. Astor, it is said, likes to feel that he is always in command of sufficient ready cash to buy anything that may happen to catch his eye and thus "from the couple of thousand pounds in his drawer he takes handfuls of gold just as necessity may require. When Mr. Astor went to London he kept in his vault at Coutts' bank 1,000,000 sovereigns—$5,000,000.

"UNCLE JOE" NOT CONCEITED.

When the statehood bill came up in congress Representative Bartlett of Georgia complicated matters by demanding that the engrossed bill be read. There had been much parliamentary sharpshooting on both sides, and there were loud demands for a ruling on this point. Speaker Cannon has been trying to untangle matters with little success. He whacked the desk with his gavel.

"The chair rules," he said, and then he looked around in distress for Asher Hinds, the parliamentary expert. Hinds jumped up and whispered a few words to the speaker. Then "Uncle Joe," his confidence restored, began again. "The chair rules—" "Mr. Speaker," shouted John Sharp Williams, the democrat leader, "is this ruling to be made after a consultation?"

REBUKED THE LANDLORD.

Captain Richard Pearson Hobson was a student after his graduation from Annapolis, at the hotel Ecole d'Application du Genie Maritime of Paris. A friend of the famous sailor said of him the other day:

"At the end of Hobson's post-graduate course in Paris he made a brief walking tour through England with me. One cold night on this tour we put up at a small hotel in Bokerell. We nearly froze here, for there was not a fire anywhere. We had to go to bed immediately after dinner to keep warm and even then we were not comfortable for our blankets were thin and scanty."

"Toward midnight Hobson entered my room. 'I can't sleep,' he said. 'I am too cold. What do you think of a landlord who keeps his house like this?' 'Think of him?' said I. 'I think he ought to be rawhided.'"

"Well," said Hobson, "I am going to punish him a bit. It won't make us warmer, but it will be a pleasant thing to tell our friends about." "Then he threw open the door and at the top of his lungs he shouted: 'Fire! Fire! Fire!' "Walters, maids and finally the landlord, all in white night attire, came scampering toward Hobson through the hall. They surrounded him. "Where is the fire," the landlord cried. "What is it?" "That is what I want to ask you," said Hobson. "I'm nearly frozen."—Buffalo Enquirer.

THE MAN AND THE MERGER.

Governor S. R. Van Sant of Minnesota tells a story of his experience with a tall, lank resident of Otter Tail county, who walked into his office recently, and, accidentally meeting him at the door of the private executive office, asked for the governor. Governor Van Sant is somewhat less than average height, stockily built, and rotund. His appearance is that of a prosperous business man.

"You the governor," the visitor asked. "Yes," Governor Van Sant responded. "You fit the merger?" the man asked, doubtfully.

"Our state was concerned in the fight," the governor replied. "Wall," the stranger retorted, "I walked in ninety-one miles to get a
